Summary

This report provides a reverse chronology of recent events involving Pakistan and Pakistan-U.S. relations. Sources include, but are not limited to, the U.S. Department of State, New York Times, Washington Post, Dawn (Karachi), Daily Times (Lahore), News International (Karachi), and major newswires. For a substantive review, see CRS Issue Brief IB94041, Pakistan-U.S. Relations. This report will be updated regularly.

07/25/05 — President Musharraf said Al Qaeda’s former Pakistan sanctuaries had been overrun and destroyed. On the same day, Islamabad expressed a desire to expand Pakistan-U.S. cooperation in the areas of nuclear energy, civilian space research, and high technology. Also, a team of Pakistani experts began inspecting the site of a controversial Indian dam project on the Chenab River in Baghliar, Kashmir.

07/24/05 — Prime Minister Aziz visited Kabul, where he vowed “seamless cooperation” with the Afghan government in fighting terrorism and Islamic extremism.

07/22/05 — More than 2,000 supporters of the MMA Islamist coalition rallied in Islamabad to protest the government’s recent crackdown on religious extremists. Smaller rallies were held in other Pakistani cities. On the same day, gunmen killed nine tribesmen, including two pro-government tribal elders, in separate attacks in South Waziristan. The elders had been assisting army efforts to hunt fugitive Islamic militants in the region.

07/21/05 — President Musharraf gave a televised speech to the nation in which he denounced the 7/7 London bombings as “unIslamic” and again vowed to combat religious extremism. He also acknowledged that some Pakistani madrassas (religious schools) “are involved in extremism and terrorism” and insisted that all madrassas register with the government by year’s end. More than 200 suspected Islamic extremists were arrested in nationwide sweeps over a period of several days.

Acronyms:
LOC: Line of Control (Kashmir)

On the same day, security forces in the Punjab province arrested ten suspected militants, including alleged members of the Jaish-e-Mohammed terrorist group.

07/15/05 — U.S. forces based in Afghanistan exchanged rocket and heavy weapons fire with militants just across the border in Pakistan, killing 24 of them. Thousands of Pakistani tribesmen later denounced the U.S. action and Pakistan later told the United States that border violations would not be tolerated. On the same day, President Musharraf asked the Supreme Court to declare the NWFP’s Hasba law unconstitutional.

07/14/05 — President Musharraf ordered a new crackdown on extremist and terrorist elements. On the same day, legislators in the NWFP provincial assembly passed a Hasba (or accountability) bill that some fear will Talibanize the province though creation of a parallel Islamic legal body. The provincial governor, who represents the federal government, called the bill unconstitutional and vowed to block it. Also, a top Pakistani army commander in North Waziristan warned tribal elders of imminent military action if they did not hand over wanted foreign militants. Finally, nine suspected separatist militants were killed by Indian security forces in a lengthy gunbattle after they reportedly crossed into Indian Kashmir from Pakistani territory.
H.Res. 353, expressing U.S. support for India-Pakistan cooperation on the construction of natural gas pipelines, was introduced in the House. On the same day, talks between Pakistani and Indian officials ended with a “serious commitment” to begin work on a $4-4.5 billion pipeline that would deliver Iranian gas through Pakistan to India. Also, India’s foreign secretary said that the continued existence of “the infrastructure of terrorism” on Pakistani soil and the continued infiltration of Islamic militants into Indian Kashmir could hamper the bilateral peace process.

India’s external affairs minister said he had provided “photographic evidence” that terrorist camps exist on Pakistani territory.

Leading Islamist politician and opposition figure Maulana Fazlur Rehman said the recently signed U.S.-India defense pact would create instability and create a war-like situation in South Asia. On the same day, suspected Taliban fighters ambushed an Afghan army patrol near the Pakistan border and beheaded ten Afghan soldiers. Also, Herald magazine reported that several militant training camps have re-opened on Pakistani territory.

A senior leader of Pakistan’s MMA Islamist political coalition suggested that Western governments may have “engineered” the 7/7 London bombings. On the same day, four suspected separatist militants and four Indian soldiers were killed in gunbattles near the Kashmri LOC.

Pakistan expressed concern that a new U.S.-India defense framework agreement could lead to “induction of advanced weapons systems into the region” and “destabilize strategic balance” there. Secretary of State Rice later told Foreign Minister Kasuri that the United States will “remain responsive to Pakistan’s security concerns.” On the same day, Pakistan and Iran signed an agreement to build a pipeline that is to deliver Iranian natural gas to Pakistan by 2009. Also, India’s prime minister said that repeated terrorist attacks have the potential to disrupt the India-Pakistan peace process. Finally, masked gunmen shot and killed a Pakistani intelligence officer in North Waziristan.

Pakistan said it would deploy an additional 4,000 troops to its border with Afghanistan, bringing the total to some 80,000. On the same day, Pakistani troops clashed with suspected militants in North Waziristan, leaving at least one soldier dead.

A convoy carrying Pakistan’s Ambassador to Iraq was attacked by gunmen in Baghdad. On the same day, Pakistan’s interior minister ruled out the possibility that Osama bin Laden was in Pakistan and suggested the Al Qaeda founder may be in southern Afghanistan.

Six suspected separatist militants were killed by Indian security forces after they reportedly crossed into Indian Kashmir from Pakistani territory.
